

Berkeley Graduate Division

Tuition Support for External Fellowships Graduate Division Policy and Contributions, 2020-21

The Graduate Division devotes a significant amount of funding to the payment of tuition and fees for recipients of external fellowships. This provides for consistent treatment of awards offered to students across many academic disciplines and, by centralizing one potentially unpredictable expense, provides financial assistance to departments.

Included in this group are two types of awards:

- Campus-wide external fellowships
- External research and writing fellowships for advanced doctoral students

Campus-wide external fellowships

Mostly multi-year and administered centrally by the Graduate Division, the fellowships in this defined and exhaustive list of programs¹ typically provide, in addition to a stipend, an allowance to be applied toward a fellow's tuition and fees. For these awards, the Graduate Division covers resident tuition and fees in excess of any tuition allowance provided, and also pays NRST for first-year doctoral students only. (NRST beyond the first year, for students who don't establish California residency, is the obligation of the student's department.)

- National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship
- Department of Defense National Defense Science and Engineering Graduate (NDSEG) Fellowship
- Fannie and John Hertz Foundation Graduate Fellowship
- Ford Foundation Predoctoral Diversity Fellowship
- Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowship
- National Physical Science Consortium (NPSC) Fellowship

Procedure: For fellowships included in this list, the Graduate Division automatically pays the tuition/fee balance.

External research and writing fellowships for advanced doctoral students²

Dissertation writing/completion fellowships

For external fellowships specifically designed to cover a student's final year of doctoral study, the Graduate Division pays up to full resident tuition and fees (but not NRST or PDST when assessed) or the balance of resident tuition and fees if the external award includes a tuition allowance. This applies to fellowships intended to provide full support for the academic year (at least $20,000 in stipend funding).

¹ The Graduate Division strongly supports graduate students' pursuit of external fellowships and aims to encourage such pursuit by offering tuition support for fellowships that include both a generous stipend and a reasonable tuition allowance. This list is reviewed on a regular basis and is therefore subject to change.

² "External" fellowships are those awarded and funded by a non-campus organization, agency, or foundation. Students must apply to the awarding organization and, following a competition, be selected by that organization; funds are generally disbursed directly to the fellow.

External fellowships for off-campus dissertation research

For fellowships supporting off-campus research activities following advancement to doctoral candidacy, the Graduate Division pays for the recipient's tuition and fees at the in absentia rate only (but, again, not NSRT or PDST). Fellowships must provide sufficient support for an academic year of research (generally $20,000, but the cost of living at one's research site is taken into consideration).

Procedure: The recipient (or recipient's department) must provide general information on the offer and a copy of the fellowship award letter, along with any associated terms documents, to the Fellowships Office via the following Google form, <https://forms.gle/eNC4MySB172BDKDY5>. Please include all supporting materials as one combined PDF file. For organizational purposes, please title the document with the student's last and first name, followed by the fellowship title (e.g. Rodgers_Aaron_Wenner-Gren). Submissions will be reviewed to confirm eligibility. Requests should be submitted as soon as possible after the fellowship is offered (generally by June). Questions can be directed to gradfell@berkeley.edu.

Other fellowships

While the Graduate Division does not guarantee tuition/fee support for any fellowship awards other than those included in the previous sections, it may, depending on the availability of funding, offer tuition/fee support for other awards. (This could include, for example, multi-year fellowships not included in the above list and research fellowships supporting on-campus or pre-advancement research.) As above, such awards must provide full support for the academic year (typically, at least $20,000 in stipend funding). Applications for this additional funding are accepted from departments each summer. In general, departments should anticipate sharing tuition costs for such requests.

The Graduate Division does not provide fee coverage for departmental training grants and expects that departments will use other funds (such as block allocations) to cover the balance of trainees' tuition and fees.

Procedure: Requests should be submitted by the recipient's department via the following Google form, <https://forms.gle/eNC4MySB172BDKDY5>. Please include the associated offer letter and fellowship terms, as well as a brief statement explaining why the department is unable to provide the needed tuition/fee payment in one PDF document. For organizational purposes, please title the document with the student's last and first name, followed by the fellowship title (e.g. Graham_Aubrey_NSERC). The deadline for 2020-21 requests is June 26, 2020.

These new policies and procedures are in effect for external fellowships awarded for 2018-19 and subsequent years.

Any questions regarding the rules and processes outlined here can be directed to gradfell@berkeley.edu